Directors' Dilemmas - Liability

A proprietary limited company is a useful business structure that limits liability. However, did you know that there are circumstances where Directors can be liable for certain acts of a company?

This webinar will analyse the case of HASHTAG BURGERS PTY LTD and Others v IN-N-OUT BURGERS, INC to examine when directors might be liable for misleading or deceptive conduct, passing off or trade mark infringement. The presenters will also delve into directors liability for penalties and the possibility of director disqualification under the Australian Consumer Law for things such as misleading representations and unconscionable conduct. This session will then conclude by covering methods of protection for directors and limitations to those available protections.

Key takeaways

- Understanding director liabilities and risk
- How to mitigate personal liability
- What to look for in a Deed of Indemnity
- What to ask for under any Directors and Officers indemnity insurance policy
