Savvy business owners will know that you need specialist workers compensation and workplace law advice to stay ahead of the game. But sometimes you need more than advice, on the big occasions where you're required to put your trust in someone who knows workers compensation and self insurance like the back of their hand.

Jonathan Ikonomopoulos takes a special pride in ensuring your company keeps well in front and entirely informed right across these complex areas, as a specialist lawyer working as part of our Workers Compensation, Self Insurance and Employment Law teams. His exemplary attention to detail and astute management of preparation leading up to Trial will be an incredible asset in the drive for sound commercial resolutions to your claims and disputes.

Expertise

Any workers compensation and employment matters going to Trial need thorough preparation and proper forethought. In the event of an unresolved dispute, Jonathan's expertise kicks in to ensure you'll have a comprehensive, practical and strategic plan before you head to court... and as your matter progresses, you'll tap into a diverse skill set as the job gets done.

How Jonathan can help you.

- Pragmatic and strategic advice to self insured employers on dispute management.
- Effective management of workers compensation claims to resolution across many industries and all claim types.
- Respected ability to manage a reduction in employer's workers compensation costs and premiums.
- Clever implementation of effective workplace management strategies and preventative measures to defend industrial claims.
- Trusted expertise and advice for businesses on their obligations and entitlements under the Return to Work Act 2014 (SA).
- Decisive knowledge of employment and industrial relations law.
- Astute knowledge, experience and preparation leading up to and including Trial.

Highlights

Whatever your industry, Jonathan can provide finely tuned expertise in managing your workers compensation claims. He has successfully defended a number of complex and challenging matters, including:

- Successfully instructed Counsel in a Trial on behalf of a publicly listed investment company defending against a difficult and complex workers compensation claim, which had failed to resolve for more than three years — mainly due to a complete relationship breakdown between the employee and the employer.
- Confidently defended numerous disputes at Trial on behalf of self insured employers, achieving sound commercial resolutions and exceeding client expectations.
